Settlers From South

Isolated by Flo Ice

Aged Homesteader Dies-Relatives Unable to Reach Him With Medical Attendance

Former residents of the country south and east of Hanna and from other parts of the dry south, are strongly pressing, for a bridge across the Little Smoky river to the area reserved by the government 20 miles south for dry belt settlers. This need has been accentuated during the period of flo ice with the news at the week end of the death of an aged homesteader and pioneer of that district.

In the face of the strong current it was impossible for relatives to reach him with medical attendance. Although Fred Harvey, 72 died November 23, the funeral is delayed until the ice is safe.

Several demands for a bridge over the Little Smoky have been made and Falher is the nearest point on the N. A. R. Grande Prairie branch of the reserve, but there is already quite a settlement in that sector who need year-round communication by road. (Hanna Herald, Dec. 7.)

DIXIE

ONLY 20¢ A BIG PLUG

A Happy Warrior

Many letters and postage parcels being delivered to people in Canada and the United States these days bear a little stamp in addition to the regular postage stamps. To a steadily increasing extent at the Christmas season these little extra stamps are in evidence on our mail.

What do they mean? What object do they serve? What message do they bring?

They bring a message of Christmas greetings and good wishes from the sender of the letter to the receiver of it. The regular postage stamp is a purely business stamp, a notification and receipt, as it were, that the carrying charges on the letter or parcel have been paid. But this other little stamp appearing on the reverse side of the letter from the address side is a very personal thing, carrying a purely personal message.

But there is nevertheless a business aspect to these unofficial stamps. The question has been asked, what object do they serve? The answer is that through the sale of these little stickers for our mail, money is raised for one particular purpose, and that purpose is to urge unremitting warfare throughout the year upon the dread disease of tuberculosis. And it is at the time when all people recall the Christmas message of "Peace on earth, goodwill toward men," that this little harbinger of hope makes its annual appearance.

One cent is not a large sum of money, and that is the price of one of these little stamps. But when thousands of people buy a stamp, ten stamps, one hundred stamps, and the total sale of these stamps runs away up into the hundreds of thousands and millions, and the one cent pieces roll into the coffers of the anti-tuberculosis organizations in hundreds of thousands and millions. It means that many people all over this great continent are going to receive preventive treatment against tuberculosis which otherwise they could not obtain. It means that a danger and a threat to every home throughout the land will be discovered and steps taken to remove it. It means that countless numbers of children will be saved from this dread disease to live lives of good health and usefulness whereas otherwise they would probably fill all too early grave.

But these little stamps serve still another purpose. They mean more than a Christmas greeting and a simple practical method of raising money for a great health and humanitarian purpose. They come into the homes of the land on letters and parcels once a year with a kindly warning. They ask us to take note of them; to stop and consider what they represent; and they bring a further message into every home they enter—an urgent request that we check up on ourselves and our homes once again to ascertain whether or not we are living under conditions, or indulging in habits, conducive to the contraction or development of tuberculosis.

The message of these stamps is to educate people to prevent tuberculosis from getting even a foothold, just as the practical object of their sale is to raise funds to maintain educational preventive agencies all the year round and to provide means of stamping out the disease in its very earliest stages where it has unfortunately obtained a foothold.

So, to the man, woman or child who has a nasty, persistent cold, the stamp on your mail says: Beware; do not neglect that cold, take steps to stop it at once, and if it doesn't stop see a doctor without loss of time. It says to the boys and girls who get their feet wet, and to their mother, get those wet boots and stockings off, dry and warm those feet. It points a finger of warning in homes where there is a lack of pure, fresh air, and says: open the windows and let in all the sunshine and air you can, winter as well as summer.

Because this little stamp means so much, carries such important messages and performs such a highly important work, the more of them that are started out on their mission the better. Individual readers of this article may never know how much actual work they have accomplished by placing these stamps on their letters and parcels during the next few days. The few cents they cost will be put to good purpose, and you may thereby be directly responsible for the saving of a life. The message the stamp may carry on your letter into the home of a friend or relative may result in greater care to prevent tuberculosis being taken in that home. Possibly the stamp on a letter received by you has caused you to do some serious thinking; return the favor by sending a stamp into some home where like beneficial results may follow.

No Doubt About It

A shopkeeper was persuaded to insure his premises against fire. After the formalities had been completed the shopman said: "Now, let me understand this properly. If my shop goes on fire tonight, how much will I get?" "Well," said the agent with a grim smile, "taking recent events into consideration, I should say about twenty thousand."

A business man says it is the easiest thing in the world to earn a hundreded pounds a week. But it is difficult to get paid that much.

Dog collars studded with red glass, so that the pets may be seen by motorists at night, have appeared in London.

Health For Young Girls Happiness For Tired Women

Thousands of women become tired out and run down, become thin and pale, and profound weakness makes life a burden.

The whole outlook of life is changed when the nervous, sick headaches, the sleeplessness, the spells of dizziness, of weakness and discouragement, and the tired, languid feelings disappear with the use of Milburn's H. & N. Pills. They tone up the nerves, enrich the blood, and bring the health back to normal again.

Assist Fur Farmers

Amendments To Regulations Under Saskatchewan Fur Act

Saskatchewan's legitimate fur farmers will receive relief from royalty payments on farm-raised fur-bearing animals through amendments to the regulations under the Saskatchewan Fur Act, provided for by order-in-council.

These regulations provide for no collection of royalties on silver black foxes, fisher or marten, bred on a licensed fur farm, and provides also for the rebate of all royalties collected on all other furs except muskrat, where sufficient proof is provided that the pelts were from animals actually raised on the farm.

In the case of all furs, with the exception of fox, fisher or marten, royalties are collected, and are subject to rebate in a similar manner to the way in which gasoline tax refunds are made.

The new regulations also make provision for the abolition of fees for import permits, although such permits are still required. Such permits will be issued free of charge.

Relief is also granted to those purchasing pelts. Formerly purchasers were required to pay 25 cents per pelt, but now such has been reduced to "a fee equal to the royalty" which would be due and payable on such pelts.

Code Of The Hoboes

Do Not Seek Something For Nothing And Scorn Hitch Hikers

While they lost no time in drawing up a code of fair practice, the Hoboes of America as represented at their annual convention find that "riding the rods" of box cars has become even too hazardous for the veteran "boes," what with the new single rods and the high trucks now in use. But the hoboes still scorn the hitch hiker and do not seek something for nothing. The code for the "Itinerant workmen" provides: Hoboes will not wash dishes or otherwise work in a restaurant for meals—such might take work away from a man with a family. Pay for cleaning snow off walks shall be 50 cents an hour and the same rate applies to shoveling coal or cleaning windows. Hoboes may chop some wood on farms in exchange for a bed in the barn or a meal, but shall not chop all day for these awards.

Dairy Convention

Saskatchewan Meeting To Be Held In Regina In February

A Saskatchewan-wide dairy convention will be held in Regina on February 6 and 7, it was announced by Thomas Watson, Prince Albert, president of the Provincial Dairy Association.

Dairy producers and manufacturers will hold separate sessions on the opening day. Factors affecting the production of milk and marketing problems will be dealt with by the producers, particularly in regard to the fluid milk and cream trade. The manufacturers session will have under consideration matters of plant operation, and butter and cheese production.

Joint sessions will occupy the second day, when problems of general interest will receive attention.

Makes Crossing Easy

Test Of Germany's Mid-Atlantic Aerodrome Was A Success

The proposal that a series of great floating pontoons be anchored at intervals across the Atlantic from America to Europe, thus serving as stepping stones for trans-oceanic air-planes, is not new, but evidently it was never for Germany to put the idea into practical use. The Westfalen is anchored in mid-Atlantic in preparation for the proposed regular air mail service between Germany and South America. In a recent test flight a "plane reached the ship in six hours from Bathurst, Africa, then took off and reached Natal, Brazil, eight hours and 50 minutes later, thus crossing the Atlantic in under 15 hours flying time.—Christian Science Monitor.

Very Important

A young lady was having her first lesson in motor driving. The expert was at some pains to make her understand the action of the brakes. "The hand lever," he explained, "brakes the rear wheels only, but the foot-pedal brakes all four wheels. Now, is that plain?"

"It is," answered the pupil with a trace of annoyance. "But what is going to happen to me when all the wheels are broken?"

More than 21,000 people are employed directly and indirectly in the construction of air craft and air engines.

EXCESS FAT DUE TO RHEUMATISM

One Remedy for the Two Troubles

Having rheumatism so badly that she could scarcely walk, this woman began to eat a bag of apples every day. In a letter just received, she writes:

"I had a severe attack of rheumatism in both knees. It was so bad that I could not stand on my feet to the ground. I was also getting terribly fat—through not getting my usual exercise. I started taking Kruschen Salts and, and persevered. The first thing noticed was the tone of the body it had; and—better than anything—I lost the wretched fat. I am a woman of 50, and when I tell you I do exactly the same as I did when I was in my age without the least difficulty, I am sure you will understand why I swear by Kruschen Salts and recommend them."

The salts—Kruschen assist the kidneys to get rid of the waste and poisons that encumber the system. Then little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes—but surely. The weight disappears and head aches disappear. You feel more healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life."

Religious Character Of Late General Sir Arthur Currie Is Illustrated

As illustrating the religious character and fundamental of the late General Sir Arthur Currie, an incident of the early post-war days of 1919 in England is recalled here by Norman Sommerville, prominent Toronto K.C.

Britain was then in the throes of the reactions of war's end. Strikes and general unrest prevailed. All sorts of remedies were being suggested. Sir Arthur and Mr. Sommerville met in the studio of Richard Jack, of the Royal Academy, who was painting the Canadian general's portrait. Talking over the conditions of the time Mr. Sommerville asked Sir Arthur what in his opinion was most essential to bring about real social and industrial contentment and progress.

"Just this," said Sir Arthur, fervently, "Britain must get back to the Bible and to family worship and there find peace and comfort."

Sale Of Prize Cattle

Good Prices Obtained At Royal Winter Fair

Sale of prize cattle at the Royal Winter Fair found numerous buyers with the grand champion Aberdeen Angus steer, owned by Howard T. Fraleigh of Forest, Ont., bringing $432.25. The steer, weighing 1,235 pounds, was sold for 35 cents a pound.

An average price of 8½ cents a pound was obtained for the champion cariot of cattle exhibited by the Canadian Pacific Railway farm at Strathmore, Alberta. The second prize cariot, exhibited by the McTavish Ranching Company, High River, Alberta, also brought an average figure of 8½ cents a pound.

The Prince of Wales' Shorthorn steer from his ranch near High River, Alberta, tenth in its class, was bid up to 14 cents a pound before sold.

India To Have Exhibition

Asking Machinery Firms All Over World To Send Exhibits

Invitations are being sent to machinery manufacturers in all parts of the world to send exhibits to the exhibition of Indian industries that will be held in Delhi next February. The Association for the Development of Swadeshi (Home) Industries is organizing the event, which is intended to show the development being made in Indian home industries. The organization has achieved much success in promoting the "cottage" type of industry in which the "work" is done at home in small shops. It also has helped in launching large enterprises. The promoters say that these industries soon will need machinery, ranging from those turning out agricultural and mining instruments to those producing toys.

"Is this Peabody, Finchley, Longworth & Fitzgerald?"

"Yes, this is Peabody, Finchley Longworth & Fitzgerald."

"I want to speak to Mr. Smith."

NERVOUS, SLEEPLESS

Mr. Wm. Dovring, London, Ontario, writes: "I am an invalid all the time. I had a heart attack in 1918 and my back—in fact I was lame for a year. I took a bottle of Dr. Price's Golden Medical Discovery product & wonderful changes took place in us until I felt normal again."

Juvenile Law Too Lenient

Woman Magistrate From England Has Had Seven Years' Experience

Seven years' experience as presiding officer at the Juvenile Court in St. Pancras Division, London, England, has led Mrs. Philip Bright, J.P., to believe that children who break laws are often treated in too lenient a fashion, particularly when they repeat offences. "I admit," said Mrs. Bright when interviewed at Montreal.

"That I am one of the few women judges who has ever ordered a boy to be birched. But the boy was a repeated offender and I must say that after he had been birched he never again appeared in the court before me."

No children appear in juvenile court in England until they are eight years of age and are considered juvenile cases until they reach 17. Mrs. Bright pointed out. The whole atmosphere of the juvenile courts are one of informality, she explained, the police officers testifying in civilian clothes instead of the awe-inspiring black and brass. She felt this system had acted as a boomerang as it tended to do away with much that would impress the errant boy or girl with the majesty of the law which had broken.

As long as the mother was "all right," Mrs. Bright said, it was felt that the children of the family could easily be led back into paths of rectitude from which they might have strayed, regardless of the character of their father. But if the mother was "no good," the work of the Juvenile Court Officials was regarded as a colossal task, whether the father was a consistent offender or whether he was a law-abiding man.

She is a firm believer in the sanctity of marriage, and would make it more difficult than more easy to get divorce, except when one partner in the marriage is a habitual criminal or is found to be incurably insane.

Crime conditions have improved very considerably in Britain, Mrs. Bright said. "We are closing prisons in England—not building them," she added.

Revaluating The Horse

Demand In Recent Months Has Overaken The Supply

It is arguable that farmers in the long run can do as much for themselves by revaluating the horse as by devaluating the dollar. Students of the agrarian problem know that no small part of the farmer's troubles is due to the gasoline engine, which has been displacing the horse and so robbing the farmer of an outlet for his hay and feed. Millions of acres have thus gone out of cultivation. In 1920 there were more than 20,000,000 horses on the nation's farms. In 1930 they were down to 13,500,000.

Since the depression the horse has been coming back. A bulletin of the Horse Association of America says there were on March 1 this year, 15,250,000 horses on the farm, receipt of feed for his hay and feed. Millions of acres have thus gone out of cultivation. In 1920 there were more than 20,000,000 horses on the nation's farms. In 1930 they were down to 13,500,000.

Multi-Colored Bricks

Building Bricks Of Various Hues And Tints Now Having Vogue

In recent years there has been a marked improvement in England particularly in the south, in favor of multi-colored, rough-textured bricks, states a report, issued recently by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, on the building brick industries.

The colors range from white, yellow, tan, brown, red, to purple, blue, black grey with variegated and mottled tints. Descriptions such as "autumn tints," "cherry red," "brindled," "dark strawberry," "orange red plum," "silver grey," "golden grey," "pot-pourri," "brown, mottled, brindled," found in catalogues, give an indication of the wealth of vivid colorings.

But these are greatly outdistanced by the Americans. Urged by the recent enthusiasm of architects for color, they have achieved a remarkable range of gradation in light shades—white, cream, stone, limestone, grey to match natural stone, iron, buff, golden buff, as well as in vivid tints of tangerine, toasted brown, pale greens, reds, blues and purples. They have reproduced the tints of the sycamore and its foliage, red, grey, golden brown, green and fawn.

Reference is made to the adoption in American skyscrapers of flowing color schemes, wherein hue is superimposed on hue, or where the contrasting of light and dark is used in columns running to the height of the building, thus emphasizing the vertical construction.

Celebrate Radium Wedding

Couple In Devon Have Been Married Seventy Years

In the little village of Axmouth, near Sidon (Devon), the two oldest inhabitants have celebrated their "radium wedding."

And in case you don't know what a radium wedding is, it represents seventy years of conjugal bliss.

The couple are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoare, each aged about ninety. They were born at Axmouth and married in the village church. They still live there, though they were away from the old village for many years. Mr. Hoare served his full time with the Metropolitan Police.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful art student, and Peter Anson, a struggling painter, have been boy and man secretly, deciding to live apart until the time Peter can establish himself. Camilla, the adopted daughter of wealthy parents, is not to inherit much when she reaches age. She is preparing herself for life with a course in commercial art, hoping to get a job to enable her to support herself. She has been making the rounds of studios, Peter's included, in his studio an idea for a figure with which he hopes to win a scholarship to study abroad, receives a call from a beautiful model, Sylvia Todd, who offers the work for him. Thinking it would be her. He cannot afford a model, but promises to think it over. Peter discusses the matter of model with Camilla and decides to employ Miss Todd. Together they paint. Peter is a tall, slender figure. They are at the height of their happiness. (Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXI.

Sylvia Todd was doing her best to be comfortable in her over-furnished apartment that was just three short blocks from Annex Hall where Peter had his studio. A huge electric fan contributed its tireless efforts in her behalf, collaborating with a sweating bottle of ice and ginger ale, a five-pound box of chocolates and a dozen assorted pillows. Evidently, Peter's dollar had expanded its usefulness. The telephone jingled at Sylvia's elbow.

She picked up the instrument and drawled languidly, "Yes."

"Miss Todd?" inquired a guarded voice. "What did you do?"

"Say, he wasn't going to enter that exhibit at all," Sylvia's tone was belligerent, as if she suspected that all was not as it appeared on the surface.

"Impossible! He just told you that to get rid of you. Didn't you get the work?"

"Wait a minute! Not so fast, or I'll hang up on you. I was the one who made him reconsider the thing, and I'll bet I get the job. He promised to let me know tomorrow."

"You're sure he wasn't stalling?"

"Not a chance. If he decides to do the work, I'm the model, all right. Leave it to me and call tomorrow night. Say, he even gave me a dollar for my dinner," she laughed triumphantly.

"He would. All right, Miss Todd, I'll call about this same time tomorrow evening."

Sylvia chattered the telephone into place and resumed her sipping of ginger ale with a shrewd smile. Her image was reflected in a mirror on the opposite side of the room, for which gratifying purpose the chaise lounge was placed at its particular angle. To that image Sylvia nodded.

and observed aloud. "Who knows? I may go into this thing on my own interests. He is keener than I expected him to be. But I'll work along with the boss until I see where I stand. Safety first for yours truly."

So Peter began work on his piece for the exhibit. Into it, he put his whole soul and mind, for he was no half-way man about anything he did. Eagerly concerned as she was in his progress, Camilla did not intrude often upon his time and solitude. She never went to the studio during working hours, and most of their time together was given to walks in the park or meeting for dinner to talk things over and absorb new courage and inspiration from their companion.

Already, Camilla was apprehensive about her own future, because she seemed only to meet with passion and pain everywhere. But she gave Peter no hint of her anxiety, striving to pour out for his encouragement a larger measure of hope and confidence than she herself possessed. Added to her increasing fear for her own future, was an atmosphere of disapproval and upheaval at the Hoyts. As Camilla staunchly maintained her preference to become independent, Mrs. Hoyt grew more antagonistic to everything she did. It became increasingly difficult for Camilla to see Peter without admitting how much and how often she did see him. That Peter called for her occasionally, Mrs. Hoyt knew; but that Camilla spent hours with Peter which she accounted for vaguely as shopping, a matinee, interviewing employers or driving with the girls, she was not aware.

Still, Camilla was seeing too much of this man who was nobody and had nothing except an ambition. Mrs. Hoyt had concluded. Of course, she forgot that was originally status of all people who really accomplished important things. Her attitude toward Camilla's welfare was an enigma to those who knew the circumstances. She had relinquished all responsibility for that girl after her twenty-first birthday, yet was jealous in her efforts to interest Camilla in a marriage which would provide her a fortune.

She began to arrange special opportunities for Terry Wayne's convenience. He was perhaps the most eligible of Camilla's following. He was really favorably all the items on her questionnaire of qualifications.

In July, the Hoyt household removed to their summer home at the Resort Club on the lake shore, which complicated the situation for Camilla in some respects and improved others. She was farther away from Peter while at the club, but nearer when she drove into town on personal errands.

Another twist in Peter's pride was his refusal to drive with Camilla in her handsome, glittering roadster. Of course, it would be delicious, to sit beside her with the wind blowing against their faces and caressing their clothes with glowing glee, flashing along smooth highways between sunlit fields and cool, fragrant woods; but it would have to be his own motor car in which they drove. So Camilla did not urge him, and never mentioned the subject again after his first terse refusal to be understood. But still being Camilla Hoyt in the eyes of the world, she mated about on her own affairs alone, or with the girls occasionally.

It was during their second week at the Resort Club that Camilla returned from the city to find the house filled with visiting guests. Gav repartees and laughter floated out for her as she drove to the garage, the veranda flushed with vivid sports frocks, and bathing suited forms readily loled on the beach.

She approached the veranda with inquiry on her face. Mrs. Hoyt, in her most gracious and grande dame manner, offered brightly, "Surprise, my dear, was afraid it had been rather dull for you out here, so I arranged a little house party for the week-end. All of your best friends are here."

Camilla could not summon even that enthusiasm which she believed the gracious gesture warranted. "That was sweet of you," she said vaguely. "Hello, everyone."

"It must be very warm in town," Mrs. Hoyt was solicitous. "Warm-like a furnace," Camilla observed.

"Well, come along and get a suit," ordered Cathie Harris. "Some of us were plenty enough to wait for you, even though we're sweltering in here while the cool waves mock us. Everybody on the beach in five minutes!"

"What's the penalty?" demanded Terry Wayne.

"That depends upon who pays it," Cathie retorted. "The 'ju-jus' will decide the verdict after the offense."

Camilla was poised on the springboard like a winged goddess in her brief scarlet suit, silhouetted against the vivid blue of the sky background. Her diving commanded the admiration of every spectator, with a favorable margin, of course, upon the masculine side. It is not easy for any woman to admire any accomplishment of a rival which attracts male attention.

With the encouragement of applause, she performed the whole series of dives; the graceful ja-knife, the difficult backhand, the twisting cork-screw, the hurtling somersault.

After the last, she swam slowly up to the float and pulled herself up to rest. Terry immediately followed and joined her.

"That was marvelous," he told her, emerging from the water dripping and white-skinned. "Is there anything you can't do?"

"Don't flatter me, because I've had hours of time to practice diving. I wish I could do something practical."

"You're always practical. Don't you know you're a lot different from the other girls, like Cathie and Avis..."

"I hope I am something individual," she said lightly, and plunged suddenly into the water.

Avis lay on the beach. Her bathing suit was scarcely damp. Swimming was much too strenuous, she thought, to be worth the effort. A cooling dip was enough for her. Camilla dropped down beside her, breathing hard after her race with Terry.

"You have a horrible amount of energy," Avis remarked, her tone divided between admiration and disapproval.

"I wish I had something to use it on. I like to be doing things."

"I've noticed," he said, "you've seen Peter Anson, lately?"

Camilla started, then replied casually, "Oh, occasionally."

"I'm working for the exhibit?"

"I believe he is."

"Why didn't you ask him to the party? He needs this sort of thing if anyone does."

"It happens I am not his keeper, and besides, I didn't do the planning for this party. It was mother's idea entirely."

"So it was. I've a bright idea. Let's drive in and get Peter now. Your mother wouldn't mind, would she?"

"Perhaps not. But I don't think Peter would come."

"Why not?" Avis demanded sharply.

"He would if I ask him, I bet."

Camilla decided that it was wiser not to oppose her, and not to be too familiar with Peter's inclinations. "Ask him if you wish, I don't mind." But she wondered what Peter would do about it. She did wish he were there with them. He needed the rest and change. Perhaps it was just as well if Avis did the persuading. He would be more likely to come, under the circumstances.

"Let's get Terry to drive us in," Avis suggested, jumping up to put her plan into action and showing the most energy and enthusiasm.

Mrs. Hoyt was not too enthusiastic about the addition of Peter to the party, but it seemed to be Avis who wanted him, and she could not refuse to grant a guest's friend her hospitality.

"Well, come along and get a suit," ordered Cathie Harris. "Some of us were plenty enough to wait for you, even though we're sweltering in here while the cool waves mock us. Everybody on the beach in five minutes!"

"What's the penalty?" demanded Terry Wayne.

Change In Locomotives

Railroad President Predicts That Gas Will Replace Steam

The days of steam locomotive, with its belching smokestack and hissing cylinders, are definitely numbered, in the opinion of Fred Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad.

Single unit gas and electric locomotives of various designs will gradually supplant the iron horse in both suburban and long haul service, Sargent believes. The single unit system is more practical, flexible and economical than either steam or a comprehensive centrifugal electrified system.

"Elaborate studies made by Westinghouse and General Electric show that it would cost at least $60,000,000 to electrify the three suburban branches of the Northwestern with a fixed power plant system," said Sargent.

"I predict that within eight or ten years, possibly sooner, the gas unit or electric engine, will be so far developed that it will take the place of steam on American railways."

Fishing In Madagascar

Natives Find Living Fishhooks Fine For Purpose

When you go fishing in Madagascar you don't always use a rod and hook; you just get a piece of stout line and a fish called a hamby, all alive and wriggling, and let him do the fishing for you! This strange inhabitant of the sea, is about as long as a man's arm and its back fin is just like a brush, covered with a thin layer of some sticky liquid like gum. When this brush fastens on to another fish, that unlucky fellow is held fast and secure, and the fisherman who is using the hamby, just hauls in the line, detaches the captured fish, and puts him "swimming hook" in the water again! These "living fishing-hooks" last years, because the natives keep them in wooden cages, which they fasten in the sea. Needless to say, this useful fish is fed regularly every day by its owner, the chief diet being rice or small fish. Not only fish, but even turtles are said to be caught in this extraordinary manner.

The famous Dead Sea of Biblical history, now owned jointly by Palestine and Trans-Jordan, is estimated to contain 43,000 million metric tons of chemical salts.

Trees As Safety Device

A novel departure in afforestation is being installed on a new by-road near Oxford. Silver birch trees are being planted at the corners of every side turning so that at night their silvery white trunks may reflect the headlights of oncoming cars. Open spaces are being planted with shade trees for future picnickers. The roadside hedges will hide the useful, but ugly, wooden fence.

What's the penalty?" demanded Terry Wayne.

"That depends upon who pays it," Cathie retorted. "The 'ju-jus' will decide the verdict after the offense."

Spain Well Policed

Secret Service One Of Most Efficient In Europe

Some Spaniard once remarked jokingly that every third man in Spain is a policeman. As a matter of fact, Spain has one of the largest and most efficient secret police forces in Europe, built up by Primo de Rivera, and maintained and strengthened by his successors.

All the criminals and most of the potential criminals in the country are spotted and are arrested when and if the necessity arises. Foreign anarchists and criminals who slip down over the border to Barcelona are most of them well known to the Spanish police.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the secret police's work is the political. It is almost literally true that the Minister of Interior hears every political remark of importance that is made in Spain. The government knows pretty well who to have watched, and it is notorious that no group of Spaniards can keep a secret.

Cafe and cabaret girls are said to be paid by the government when they bring in reliable tips in addition to the Civil Guard, the Security Guards and the municipal police forces, the republic has just added 5,000 assault rifles to its roster. They are tall, husky, dark and muscular. They are drilled in gymnasium tricks and taught that the dreams are to be used only as a last resort in any emergency. These assault guards are to be the special police of the republic.

May I wish my son as now, So dear, so undelighted, With innocence upon his brow, A sweet and joyous child?

But since I know that cannot be, May I grow wise and strong, And innocent in integrity, Relentless foe of wrong.

May he with gladness play his part Within the world of men, With courage and with heart And faith to try again!

But, Father, in his brief I pray Leave out this unloving place, Where still a little boy will stay For mother-love's embrace!!

Little Helps For This Week

"Are they not all ministering spirits?" — Hebrews 1:14.

May I reach That purest heaven, be to other souls The seat of strength in some great army, Kindle generous ardor, feed pure love, Be the sweet presence of a good friend. And in diffusion ever more intense. So shall I join the choir invisible Whose music is the gladness of the world.—George Eliot.

Certainly in our own little sphere it is not the most active people to whom we owe the most. Among the common people whom we know it is not necessarily those who are busiest, those who are ever on the rush after some visible change and work. It is the lives like the stars which pour down on us the calm light of their bright and faithful beings to whom we look up, and to whom we look for the deepest calm and courage. It seems to me there is there a reassurance for many of us who seem to have no chance for active usefulness. We can do nothing for our fellow-man, but still it is good to know that (and this we may know surely) that man or woman of the humblest sort can really be pure, strong, gentle and good, without the world being better for it, and without somebody being helped and comforted by the very existence of that goodness.—Phillips Brooks.

STRATHMORE EDITOR DIES

Andrew A. Moore, editor of the Strathmore Standard and formerly a prominent business man of Calgary, died at his home at Strathmore Sunday evening,
Dec. 3, following an illness of one week. He was 65 years old.

The late Mr. Moore was born in Kincardine, Bruce County, Ont., and went to Kingston in 1883, where he joined the staff of the Kingston News under L. W.
Shannon. He was also engaged by the St. Thomas Times Journal for a number of years prior to going to Calgary in 1907, as business manager of the News-Telegram. A year later he joined the staff of the Alberta as business manager. He had been proprietor of the Strathmore Standard since 1926, and had been active in community affairs

Surviving are his wife Alberta, at Strathmore, and two daughters
Mrs. W. B. MacLean, and Miss
Evelyn, both of Calgary. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Strathmore United Church, and the remains conveyed to Calgary for interment in the Union cemetery.

The late Mr. Moore was vice-president Alberta Division Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, and had always been active in the affairs of the provincial press.—Hannan Herald.
